(U//~~ATUO~~) CIA Declassification Center

(U//~~ATUO~~) CDC Delivers Declassified Documents to Ford Library

(U//~~ATUO~~) On 27 December 2001, a representative from the CIA Declassification Center (CDC) traveled to the Ford Library in Ann Arbor, Michigan to deliver and install two compact discs containing about 120 reviewed documents. The installation was completed in just over one hour.

- The two CDs are a part of the ongoing effort to complete the material at the Ford Library that is subject to the automatic declassification provisions of EO 12958. CDC is working currently on 20 binders containing 11" x 17" printouts from the White House registry that contain metadata from all documents received during the Ford administration. Some of the registry entries contain sensitive CIA information that will require protection. [redacted]

(U//~~ATUO~~) From the Archives: Soviets Take Exception to Disrespectful Treatment of Pravda

(U//~~ATUO~~) In the late 1940s, Moscow sent large numbers of issues of its newspaper Pravda to a department store in Harbin, China, for propaganda purposes, but no one bought it to read, according to a 1954 CIA information report that was recently reviewed by the DO team at the CIA Declassification Center. Local Russians would buy up the unread newspapers in bulk and sell them to Chinese junkmen who, in turn, would resell them to local paper manufacturers who would recycle them into new paper. When the local Soviet consulate learned of this "disrespectful" treatment of the Soviet newspaper, it stopped delivery and opened its own store for sale of Pravda and other Soviet publications.
